Reports On Drop In Polio Cases

Infantile paralysis is slowing down to non-epidemic proportions, Dr. Roy O. Gilbert, Los Angeles county health officer, reported this week. The number of cases in the Torrance health district to date totals 31, three of which were in the city of Torrance.

This announcement followed a staff meeting of district health officers last week which was attended by Dr. Henry C. Smiley, of the local health center. During the staff meeting the new motion picture depicting the use of the drug, curare, in the treatment of poliomyelitis was shown. Although curare was used in only 50 cases during the summer peak of the disease, health authorities hope it will prove to be effective enough for widespread use.

In a comparison of the average number of infantile paralysis cases during the past five years when there were 135 cases to this same date, the total number of cases in Los Angeles county this year so far has totaled 1,132.

CASTLE CRAGS STATE PARK
Castle Crags State Park, Shasta County, four miles south of Dunsmuir, is the site of the "Battle of the Crags" where, in 1855, while settlers drove the Indians up into the crags. It was during this battle that Joaquin Miller, the poet, was wounded by an arrow.
